Case.

The Recent Decision in the Jamaica The charge of Chief Justice Cockburn to the Grand Jury in the case of General Nelson and Lieutenant Brand is described as magnificently lucid by the press, and to have been the clearest exposition of martial law ever delivered from the English Bench. The London Spectator, which has all along called for the punishment of Mr Eyre and his associates, has an article highly laudatory of the Chief Justice, in which it claims that " almost everything has been gained by the charge which could have been gained even by the trial, except, indeed, the warning of a conviction." The Chief Justice has decided that English subjects who can claim the protection of the English common law, are really in no case liable to the jurisdiction of such Courts as tried the late Mr Gordon. For, first, no civilian not taken in arms against the Government, can be tried otherwise than by the ordinary civil and crimical tribunals to which all his countrymen are subject. Martial law, according to the Chief Justice, is one of two things-either the mere law of necessity, which will always warrant the use of violence whether by a State or by individuals in self-defence, though the urgency of the case must of course be shown by way of justification-or, on the other hand, 'military law,' to which soldiers alone are liable, and which is a system of fixed rules laid down by the Articles of War. Beyond this there is no such law in existence, says the Chief Justice, as martial law, and no power in the Crewn to proclaim it. Even admitting that Mr Eyro's oyes were not unnaturally blinded by the appearance of power bestowed upon him under the Colonial Act, the Chief Justice in the strongest and most peremptory part of his decision lays it down that the seizure of Mr Gordon in a district expressly exempted from martial law in order to convey him into a district placed by the Colonial authorities under martial law, and this with the avowed purpose of denying him a tribunal by which he probably must have been acquitted, was an act of a grossly illegal character. "The whole proceeding," said the Chief Justice, "of taking him from where he was afe, putting him on a war steamer, and banding him ever to a court-martial at Morant Bay, was unjustifiable. To Mr Gordon it made the difference of life or death. He [the Chief Justice] said so advisedly, and after a careful perusal of the evidence he came irresistibly to this conclusion .that if Mr Gordon had been tried before any ordinary tribunal, presided a loan on the church property of over by a competent judge,-but he stopped himself,-he could not have been tried on that evidence, for three fourths, he had almost said nine, tenths, of the evidence on which that man was convicted, sentenced to death, and executed, was not evidence that according to any rules of ordinary or military law, or of right or case of McCafferty. A writ of error STOLEN ET ON THE BRITISH SHEEL justice, could ever have been admitted was issued at the instance and at the if a competent judge had presided, or if there had been the advantage of the

The deliberations of the society were presided over by a venerable darkey, who performed the duties with the utmost dignity pecular to his color. The subject for discussion on the occasion of which we write was, 'Which am de mudder ob de chicken—de hen wot lay deegg, or de hen wot hatches de chick?' The question was warmly debated, and many reasons pro and con were urged and combated by the excited disputants. Those in favor of the latter proposition were evidently in the majority, and the president made no attempt to conceal that his sympathies were with the dominant party. At length an Intelligent darkey arose from the minority side, and begged leave to state a proposition to this effect: Spose,' said he, 'dat set one dozen duck's eggs under a hen, and dey hatch, which am Spose, 'said he, 'dat set one dozen duck's eggs under a hen, and dey hatch, which am do mudder, de duck or de hen?' This was a poser, was well put, and nonplused the other side, even staggering the president, who plainly saw the force of the argument, but had committed himself too far to yield without a struggle; so, after cogitating and scratching his wool a few minutes, a bright idea struck him. Rising from his chair in all the pride of conscious superiority, he announced: 'Ducks am not before the house; chicken am de question; derfore I rule de ducks out!' and do it he did, to the complete overthrow of the opponents.

Supreme Court of Civil Justice. [BEFORE CHIEF JUSTICE NEEDHAM.]

PIDWELL v. THE HUDSON BAY CO.

FRIDAY, June 14, 1867.

The jury entered the box at 111/4 o'cleck and the Chief Justice proceeded to deliger a charge of which the following is a sycop-sis. His Lordship complimented the coun-sel on both sides for the skill with which they had handled the case, and it was he said, the duty of the Court to tell the jury that they had nothing to do with the importance of the case or whether there were any other suits depending upon this. Every case was of importance. No man came into court with a case except it was important to him; and no man defended a case that was not of importance to the party defending it. Whether he was a poor man or fending it. Whether he was a poor man or a rich man, a sait at law was always of importance. This was an action brought by plaintiff to recover the value of luggage belonging to his wife which was lost on the Labouchere on the voyage of that vessel from San Francisco to Victoria. The plaintiff aleged reachilificate, of contract, and neglileged non-fulfilment of contract and negligence on the part of defendants' servants.

The answers upon which the jury had to find were,—That they were not carriers; that they did not receive the custody of the goods; that they did not promise to carry the goods; then, that there was a safe deliverance of their goods; that their ship was lost through accidents and dangers of soa; lost through accidents and dangers of soa; further that goods were not shipped by a bill of lading; and, lastly, that they paid back the passage money, which Mrs Pidwell accept-ed as full satisfaction of all claims against the Company. The defendants say, first, that they were not common carriers. Captain Mount had given evidence as to the after-Mouat had given evidence as to the direct ations effected on the vessel for convenionce of passengers and freight, and Dr Tolmie tes-tified that the vessel was engaged in the esr-lying trade, had already made one trip, and was completing the last half of an-other when the disaster occurred. It was clear, then, that they terr common carriers. Mrs Pidwell proves that she went on some the ship, paid $30 to Warren, the Company's agent, delivered her baggage to him, and received a receipt in the form of a passage ticket. The plaintiffs construct hat into beticket. The plaintills construct that into being a contract to carry her and her baggage to Victoria, and his Lordship setal he was bound to tell the jury, in point of law, that if the defendants are common carriers they were bound to deliver by that contract with two exceptions—viz, the act of God and the Queen's enemies. The act of God was n disaster that no human skill, prudence or forethought could avert, and if the jury was of opinion that the vessel was lost in the or opinion that the vessel was lost in the face of all the skill, prudence and forethought of the defendants, then they are not liable.

The plaintiff had made out the point that the Company had not carried the wife of plaintiff the country and esfaled to the point of dear Company had not carried the wife of plaintiff "securely and safely" to the point of destination. The point of non-delivery was fully established. The final question would be whether the defendants were guilty of negligence. The defendants were liable for every expense incurred previous to the arrival of the ship at Victoria. There is no evidence that a bill of lading was necessary for the property. Such is not the custom. These property. Such is not the custom. These points must be found for the plaintiff, and the case is narrowed down, aye or no, whether the vessel was lost through circumstances that no human prudence or skill could avert?

A shipoweer was bound to have his ship, A shipower was bound to have his ship, its tackle and apparel in good and sufficient order. Compasses were a part of the apparel of a ship. The captain and officers should be competent, having a sufficient knowledge of their business, and they were called on to exercise reasonable care and skill in the management of their vessels. It they fail for want of reasonable care or skill, then they are liable. That skill varies accalled on to exercise reasonable care and skill in the management of their vessels. It they fail for want of reasonable care or skill, then they are liable. That skill varies according to circumstances. There are various degrees of nautical skill. You would not put the captain of a man-of-war in command of a secow, nor would you put the captain of a secow, nor would you put the captain of a secow in command of a man-of-war. Thus, they were bringing in a class of a secow in command of a man-of-war. Thus, they were bringing in a class of a secow in command of a man-of-war in command of a man-of-war in command of a man-of-war in degree of a lower sphere to adapt it to a higher sphere. Other gentlemen of the lighest experience had testified that the her course further south? Because it was blowing hard, was an additional reason for laying her further south. The course of the vessel was in ther followed by the Chief Justice, who showed that the steamer was running due north at the time she went ashore. At that time the Captain knew of the deviation in the compass, but made no allowance for wind or strong sea. When he found the deviation, why did he not come to anchor? There was good anchorage ground all around him. The tacking in and out of ing to assist justice rather than distract it,

The Chief Justice replied that the Court the deviation in the compass, but made no allowance for wind or strong sea. When he found the deviation, why did he not come to anchor? There was good anchorage ground all around him. The tacking in and out of the ship after she struck was good policy, according to the evidence; but the point was immaterial in this issue. There was not the slightest reason to suppose that Capt. Mouat did not do all that humanity could sugrest to save the lives of his passengers When he went ashore after the wreck, he When he went ashore after the wreck, he entered and extended a protest before the Commissioners; in that protest he attributed the loss of the ship to the state of the weather; on the 4th of May, before the Commission, he attributed the loss to the compasses being out of order. He said he had abundance of time to get back to San Francisco, but did not know where he was; he did not sound, and attributed the variation to the attraction of the iron in the pilot to the attraction of the iron in the pilot house. By consulting the chart, he finally said, that instead of the compasses being out half a point they must have been 3½ points out. Now, in his evidence given here on the out. Now, in his evidence given here on the 13th June, iost., Mouat swore that he sent five of his compasses to Mr Tennent, at San Francisco, to be adjusted; but other witnesses say that all the optician does is to render the magnet a perfect one; he cannot allow for local attraction. Mr Nathan (a Juror)—I understood Capt. nabis.
His Lordship.—Supposing that to be accurately true, they ought all to agree; and the fact that two agree and one does not, does not justify him in continuing his course. All he could say was, my compasses are not correct, and he should have taken cross-bearings or swung his ship. The fact of his sails not being bent was nogligence, yet nothing resulted therefrom, and the jury were advised to put that out of their mind. After she struck, the Captain says he found that the compasses were out a point and a half. Mr Ring—But after she struck the pumps were working and the movement of the iron handle must have affected the compasses, (merriment).

His Lordship-There is the suggestion for you, gentlemen of the jury. You may take it into consideration if you wish [a laugh]. Capt Mouat in his evidence said that the acmosphere affected his compass; he den't agree with his counsel as to the influence of the iron pump handle [a laugh], Capt Mouat further said that he could not get back to San Francisco because his compasses were San Francisco because his compasses were wrong, and yet he says in another part of his evidence that he knew how to adjust them. These statements certainly do not agree I the wind up of his evidence Capt Mouat says—"I am still at loss to understand the cause of the wreck; if there was a variation in the compasses I should have attributed the loss to that; I do not think there was a variation that faith each appropriate was a large went on board the ship, it was a delivery. We work there is a gage went on board the ship, it was a delivery. We want on board the ship, it was a delivery. We want on board the ship, it was a delivery. We want on board the ship, it was a delivery. We want on board the ship, it was a delivery. variation, but I did say to a passenger that the fact of the compass being 11/2 points out was the cause of the disaster.'

Mr Ring here rose to make a suggestion; but his Lordship declined to bear him, saying that these interruptions were not only inharmonious but were sometimes done with the

His Lordship-If there is anything wrong in the charge you can take notes and move for a new trial on the ground of misdirec-The charge was then continued: The evidence of Capt Mouat was entitled to serious attention and careful weighing. Mr Mc-Grath showed by the chart that it the vessel had taken her true course she would have been 13 miles south of Point Reyes. How was it C-pt Mouat found himself on P. int Reyes instead? The only theory tending to account for it was by the evidence of Capt Oldfield who thought that the wind and cur-rent might make a difference of five miles; but Mr McGrath thought it would not make more than a mile's difference.

Capt Oldfield here rose and explained a portion of his evidence relative to the leeway of the ship.

His Lordship-Capt Oldfield says that either the compasses were wrong or the steering was bad to bring the ship on Point Reyes. If there was bad steering there was negligence. If the compasses were bad, the owners were liable for not having provided proper instruments.

Mr Ring—There is no decided ovidence that the vessel struck on Point Reyes.

His Lordship—Capt Mouat says she did strike there. It is for the jury to decide whether she did or not. I do not think there is any doubt on the subject. Several gentlemen called for the defendants swore that it was not usual to swing ships; there are no doubt cases of captains who would think it unnecessary to do so, but the skill required if a ship is described as a sailer or sailing vessel, no amount of skill is no essary with regard to steam; if a vessel is intended for a second to the second to steam; if a vessel is intended for a second to steam; there is limited expenses the sail of the second to steam; the sail is intended for a second to steam; the sail is intended for a second to steam; the sail is intended for a second to steam; the sail is intended for a second to steam; the sail is intended for a second to steam; the sail is intended for a second to steam; the sail is intended for a second to steam; the sail is intended for a second to steam; the sail is intended for a second to steam; the sail is intended for a second to steam; the sail is intended for a second to steam; the sail is intended for a second to steam; the sail is intended for a second to steam; the sail is intended for a sail is sail to sail it was the only sail to steam; the sail is a sail of the sail of the sail of the sail is a sail of the sail o regard to steam; if a vessel is intended for a steamer, then a limited amount of knowledge of sailing is alone necessary. But if she is destined for both sail and steam, a knowledge of both is required. If a vessel knowledge of both is required. If a vessel confident in their powers of avoiding danger knowledge of both is required. If a vessel is intended as an ordinary carrier of freight, not to much skill is required; But if a vessel is intended as a passenger ship, to carry a number of valuable lives, a higher class of man is required. The captain is bound to know all that is reasonably necessary for the purpose for which he is employed; and if the vessel is lost through his want of skill, even if every possible care is observed, then the owners are liable. His Lordship next proceeded to review the ovidence. Capt. Mouat had been examined twice, and, strange to say, on two very tial question was, age or no, did t e Labou-chere put to sea on the 14th of April, 1866 twice, and, strange to say, on two very twice, and, strange to say, on two very material points his last evidence differed entirely from his evidence on a previous octomatiner would have taken to see that the casion. It was for the jury to say now far these contradictory statements were entitled to credence! What was the character of the man? What influences were brought to bear upon the witness? and under what state of circumstances the evidence was given in cach case. When Capt. Monat was examined first, shortly after the wreck, the facts ed first, shortly after the wreck, the facts were fresh in his memory. He is examined again in this case (thirteen months after word) and gives a different statement of have anothered then his failure to the should have anothered then his failure to the should sgain in this case (thirteen mouths after-wards) and gives a different statement of the circumstances. His Lordship proceeded to review the evidence given by Capt. Mouat before the Commission, and to com-ment thereon. He said that because Mouat ment thereon. He said that because Mouat ment thereon. He said that because Monat had no Trinity House certificate was no reason to suppose that he was not a skilful man; but no man could precure a Trinity House certificate except he was skilful and the trinity thouse certificate except he was skilful and the compasses were wrong, then you must find on the question of negligence. Gentlemen, you are the resulting the compasses the compasses were wrong, then you must find on the question of negligence.

reason to suppose that he was skilful, and the possession of one is the best evidence or a man's fitness. Capt. Monat should have known there was a variation in his compasses; but he did not discover that there was a variation until half-an-hour after he lot the Golden Gate, and he attributed it to the firon work around the pilot bouse; the Mr Ring here rose and asked the Judge tendency of the variation was to set the vestored in the subject of all claims, but the jury failed to agree. The last issue—Are you of opinion that the Labouchere was lost by the perils of the subject of the s tion of negligence. Gentlemen, you are called on to dismiss from your minds all pre-vious prejudices—all you may have thought ing to assist justice rather than distract it.

His Lordship—Mr Ring, you are so seldom guilty of irregularities that I hope you will desist now. The jury will now retire and find upon the main issue, leaving the technical points to be settled afterwards. All Mr

Ring's points shall be put before the jury.

The delivery of the charge occupied 21/4 The jury were then conducted to their

At 4 o'clock the jurors sent word into Court that they stood 5 to 3, and requested that a majority verdict be taken. Counsel declined to accede to the request, and at the expiration of three hours after their retirement, when a 6-8th verdict can legally be received they retractived they counsel into Court and any received, they returned into Court and an-ounced that there was no possibility of a change taking place in their sentiment. The Chief Justice then forcibly charged the jury that if they found the vessel was lost by a want of any amount of human skill, precaution and forethought, their verdict must be returned for the plaintiff; if they must be returned for the plaintiff; if they thought that all due precaution, skill and forethought had been exercised, they must find for the defendants.

The jury again retired, and the Court adjourned un if 7 o'clock in the evening.

At 7 o'clock the Court again assembled, and the jury having again been brought into Court, announced that they still failed the correct as mertical. The forecast asid here to come to a verdict. The foreman said he was sure that they would not be able to arrive to a decision. The Chief Justice then wert categorically through the various issues

Mr Ring again demanded a hearing, but the Chief Justice requested him to sit down. Answer-No.

5. Did the defendants carry the luggage?

The Foreman—Some of the jury do not bel evo the loggage was ever in the charge of the Company, that they had nothing to deliver except Mrs Pidwell. The question is—Was the luggage that was taken on board delivered at Victoria?

The Foreman-Some of the jury are of opinion that the Company did not receive it, and consequently could not deliver it. After some further remarks from the Chief Justice; the jory found that with the excep-tion of the one pa kage menticed in the ovidence, the luggage was not delivered at Victoria. The 5th issue, that the defendants never were indebted, was ordered to be found for defendants. The 6th issue, that the defendants are not guilty on the count for negligence:

The Foreman—That is the point on which the jury cannot agree—it is impossible.
The Chief Justice proposed to read over the evidence again to the jury, but after a short deliberation the foreman announced that no result could be arrived at, and the reading was waived. On the 6th issue, the jury therefore dis-7th-That the plaintiff's wife and goods

The jury found that the plaintiff's wife received the $30 in full satisfaction for all claims against the Company.

The Chief Justice said there was no eviagainst the Company.

The Foreman-Five to three of the jury are agreed that the $30 was received in satisfaction of all claims against the ship.

The Chief Justice explained that the $30

Before the Commission, Mouat swore that all three of the compasses varied a point and a half. A point of variation was equal to six miles in running to Point Reyes; a point and a half would be a variation of 9 miles and a fraction. The captain laid her S W by S, to get her off shore. When he disposed the variation, why did he not shape

The Chief Justice replied that the Court would give the verdict the proper direction. The jury should trust to him to shape it according to law.

Medical.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla, compound remedy, in which we have labored to produce the most effectual alterative that can be made. It is a concentrated extract of Para Sarsaparilla, so combined with other substances of still greater alterative power as to afford an effective antidote for the diseases Sarsaparilla is reputed to cure. It is believed that such a remedy is wanted by those who suffer from Strumous complaints, and that one which will accomplish their cure must prove of immense service to this large class of our afflicted fellow-citizens. How completely this compound will do it has been proven by experiment on many of the worst cases to be found of the following complaints:

SCROFULA AND SCROFULOUS COMPLAINTS

complaints:

Scrofula and Scrofulus Complaints, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases, Ulcers, Pimples, Blotches, Tumors, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Syphilis and Syphilitation Appendix, Neuralia of Tio Douldurrant, Debrity, Dyspepsia and Indeed the whole class of complaints grising from Impurity of The Blood.

This compound will be found a great promoter of health, when taken in the spring, to expel the foul humors which fester in the blood at mat season of the year. By the timely expulsion of them many rankling disorders are nipped in the bud. Multitudes can, by the aid of this remedy, spare themselves from the endurance of foul eruptions and ulcerons sores, through which the system will strive to rid itself of corruptions, if not assisted to do this through the natural channels of the body by an alterative medicine. Cleanse out the vitiated blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, cruptions, or sores; cleanse it when you find it is obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it whenever it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Even where no particular disorder is felt, people enjoy better health, and live longer, for cleansing the blood. Keep the blood healthy, and all is well; but with this pabulum of life disordered, there can be no fasting health. Sooner or later something must go wrong, and the great machinery of life is disordered or overthrown.

Sarsaparilla has, and deserves much, the reputation of accomplishing these ends. But the world has been egregiously deceived by preparations of it, partly because the drug alone has not all the virtue that is claimed for it, but more because many preparations, percending to be concentrated extracts of it, contain but little of the virtue of the content of the cause many preparations, pretending to be con-centrated extracts of it, contain but little of the virtue of Sarsaparilla, or any thing else.

During late years the public have been misled During late years the public have been misled by large bottles, pretending to give a quart of Extract of Sarsaparilla for one dollar. Most of these have been frauds upon the sick, for they not only contain little, if any, Sarsaparilla, but often no curative properties whatever. Hence, bitter and painful disappointment has followed the use of the various extracts of Sarsaparilla which flood the market, until the name itself is justly despised, and has become synonymous with imposition and cheat. Still we call this compound Sarsaparilla, and intend to supply such a remedy as shall rescue the name from the load of obloquy which rests upon it. And we whink we have ground for believing it has virtues which are irresistible by the ordinary run of the diseases it is intended to cure. In order to secure their complete cradication from the system, the remedy should be judiciously taken according to directions on the bottle.

PREPARED BY

DR. J. C. AYER & CO., LOWELL, MASS. Price, $1 per Bottle; Six Bottles fe. 85.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has won for itself such a renown for the cure of overy variety of Throat and Lung Complaint, that it is entirely unnecessary for us to recount the evidence of its virtues, wherever it has been employed. As it has long been in constant use throughout this section, we need not do more than assure the people its quality is kept up to the best it ever has been, and that it may be relied on to do for their relief all it has ever been found to do.
